A summer training program titled “Maintenance and culturing of Drosophila melanogaster to carry out experimentation based on food preference and its effect on their life cycle” was organized in the Department of Biochemistry, Shivaji College from 7th June - 19th July 2019, under the Star College Scheme, DBT, Govt. of India.

During this training, students were given hands-on training in maintaining and culturing of Drosophila melanogaster. They learnt the methodology of drosophila food preparation and the role of the various reagents that were added. The students observed the various stages of the life cycle of drosophila under the stereo microscope and learnt differentiate them on the basis of gender and stage of development. They observed the effect of various food ingredients to the life cycle of the model system. They also explored the fruit preference and preferred sugar concentration of Drosophila melanogaster and investigated if there is a gender based preference. They also learnt to do sequence analysis using tools like BLAST, and compared homologous genes of humans and drosophila. The students were introduced to various reputed journals and allotted separate study sessions to study interesting scientific articles introduce them to scientific literature and inspire them to plan their own experiments. They were taken for an educational trip to Neurobiology and Genetic Development Lab, University of Delhi South Campus (UDSC) and Botanical Garden of the Indian Republic, (BGIR). They also attended a talk by Dr. Malathi Lakshmikumaran on “Inventions and Intellectual Property Protection: India and Abroad”, held in the Department of Biochemistry, UDSC.

Field work

Aim of the Experiment 1:

To determine the minimum size of the quadrat by species area-curve method.

A L-shaped structure of  $1 \times 1$  metre size in the given area is prepared by using 3 nails and tying them with a cord or string. 10 cm on one side of the arm L is measured and the same on the other side of L, and prepare  $10 \times 10$  sq. cm area using another set of nails and string. The number of species in this area of  $10 \times 10$  sq. cm is noted. This area is increased to  $20 \times 20$  sq. cm and then again, the additional species growing in this area are noted. The same is repeated for  $30 \times 30$  sq. cm,  $40 \times 40$  sq. cm and so on till  $1 \times 1$  sq. metre area is covered and the number of additional species are noted every time. The data is plotted on graph and the point of the graph, at which the curve starts flattening or shows only a steady or gradual increase, indicates the minimum size or minimum area of the quadrat suitable for study.

Aim of the Experiment 2:

To study communities by quadrat method and to determine % Frequency, Density and Abundance.

A quadrat is laid in the field or specific area to be studied. Carefully the plants occurring there are noted. The names and number of individuals of plant species are written in the notebook, which are present in the limits of quadrat. At random at least 10 quadrats are laid in the same way and data in the form of Table is recorded. With the data frequency, density and abundance is calculated.

1. A 4-week long summer training program on “Microscopy and Herbarium Techniques” from June 21 to July 19, 2019.

A Summer Training Programme was organized by Department of Botany, Shivaji College under DBT Star College Scheme. The theme of the programme was “Microscopy and Herbarium Techniques”, which was scheduled from June 21, 2019 to July 19, 2019. The summer training programme saw a wide range of participation from students of Bachelors’ as well as Masters’ degree of University of Delhi.

The programme started with an introductory lecture followed by details of compound, fluorescence, confocal, differential interference contrast, scanning electron and transmission electron microscopes. Students learnt the principle, working, applications, advantages and disadvantages of all the microscopes in the training sessions. In the initial two weeks, students got hands on training and proper knowledge of how to handle the simplest to most advanced microscopes for the purpose of studying biological tissues. They also learnt how to prepare and fix sample for microscopy before learning about different types of stains. A very positive response was received from students when they were successful in preparing double stained slides. To give an insight into the depths of microscopic world, two charismatic speakers were invited, Dr. Vineet Singh and Dr. Yash Mangla, Assistant Professors, Department of Botany, Acharya Narendra Dev College (ANDC). The training to microscopy ended with its applications, where epidermis, different types of stomata, trichomes, placentation and pollen-pistil interactions were discussed. Two very knowledge providing visits were conducted to University of Delhi, North and South Campus to show students Scanning and Transmission Electron microscopes. In these visits they also had a first-hand training on how to prepare the samples for electron microscopy leading to successful completion of training of microscopes.

In the next two weeks, the subject of training was herbarium as it is the most crucial answer to plant systematics and evolution. During the training, students got to learn how to identify a plant, their selection and collection from various environments. The instruments used during the process of procuring and preparing herbarium was taught in details along with the advanced techniques like digital herbarium. The young brains were given the idea of how herbarium is prepared, how samples are preserved and pressed so that they can be used in future for various studies. It was a matter of immense pride that, Prof. Chirashree Ghosh, Professor, Department of Environmental Studies, University of Delhi, could be present in one of the sessions to give an insight of herbarium and its applications. Dr. Amber Srivastav, BSI was also invited for providing information to students regarding herbarium making. The students went for field exploration tour to Kamla Nehru Ridge, to get a first-hand experience of collecting and preparing herbarium.

Successful valedictory and encouraging feedbacks gave a meaningful end to the month-long summer training programme.
